

One Family to Another

Since 1996, The Johnson Firm, P.C. has helped families prepare for the future with preeminent elder law and estate planning strategies.

“We take care of families,” says Richard P. Johnson, managing partner and founder of The Johnson Firm, P.C. “We’re here to make sure our client’s intent is followed while they are alive and assets properly transferred to their loved ones after they pass.”

Since it began, The Johnson Firm has helped Texas families craft estate plans that protect their assets, reduce the impact of taxes, and provide peace of mind in a financially turbulent world. The firm provides clients with a wide range of services for both court-controlled will plans and family-controlled trust plans, as well as various resources for matters ranging from business protection to tax planning. Because the team often works with multiple generations, clients gain a strong sense of continuity.

“Our clients often never see the end result of our work,” says Marcie Johnson, partner, who joined the family firm in 2005. “They trust us to take care of the people they love most. By having strong personal relationships with our clients, their children, and even their grandchildren, we’re able to help multiple generations through a very tough time. They become like family to us.”

The Johnson Firm’s Family Care Program is just one example of this continued commitment. Clients receive an annual review of their estate plan, which makes it easier to adjust for changes in assets, tax rules, and family situations such as births, divorces, or deaths. By updating these plans regularly, clients can trust that their estate plans will continue to protect their families as situations change.

THE BIG PICTURE

A father-daughter business with the motto “Our Family Taking Care of Yours,” The Johnson Firm runs on teamwork, communication, and integrity. Rather than working with just one member of the team, clients hire the whole firm. This holistic approach has earned the team a positive reputation among Dallas-area professionals, including other attorneys.

“Many of our clients are also attorneys practicing in other areas of law who understand the benefits of working with a board-certified specialist to handle their estate planning,” says Richard.

Accredited attorneys with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, both Richard and Marcie help veterans obtain VA benefits.

“It’s very stressful for families when they can’t afford proper care, so helping them get qualified for Medicaid or VA benefits can be life-changing,” says Marcie. “This is why we enjoy practicing in this area of law, because it allows us to make a real difference for our clients and their families. It really is all about our family taking care of yours.”
